I am very pleased that the Public Service Review has once again given me this opportunity of extending to all South Australian Public Servants my best wishes for a very Happy Christmas and a prosperous 1976.

1975 has been an eventful year, with two election campaigns and other disruptions. On behalf of myself and the Cabinet, I should like to thank you for your hard work and dedication throughout the year. In South Australia we have a Public Service of which the community is justifiably proud. The success of any Government depends greatly on the quality of the Public Service, and the Government is very conscious of the high standard of the Public Service which serves this State.

I am very grateful for the ready support and co-operation we have received from you all, and which have made our job much easier.
